Headline:
Warm, dry and sunny. Cloud building in west later.

Today:
A warm to hot day with plenty of sunshine, this most prolonged across Lothian and eastern Borders, with highest temperatures in far east. Cloud increasing late afternoon over Dumfries and Galloway, but remaining dry. Maximum temperature 25 deg C (77 deg F).

Tonight:
Cloud thickening from west bringing rain to Dumfries and Galloway during evening, then to all around midnight. This clears towards dawn as dry and bright conditions feed from the west. Minimum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Monday:
A much fresher day with temperatures significantly down from Sunday. Many staying dry, but a few light showers possible, chiefly over Dumfries and Galloway. Maximum temperature 17 deg C (63 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Tuesday mainly dry and bright. Rain spreading to west late in day and overnight, before clearing eastwards Wednesday. Thereafter showers and brighter spells.
